Run (i.e., write the state of the circuit at each step) Shor’s order finding algorithm on the input $a = 10$ and $N = 21$ (you should first compute the order of $a$). At some point you will make a measurement that will have a random outcome. Do the calculation for two different possible outcomes, where at least one of the two outcomes allows you to compute the order $r$. 